Ways to use a ceramic garden stoolGarden stools have long been used as occasional seats and side tables. Set one beside a chaise or outdoor sofa for drinks, use it as a plant stand on a terrace, or bring it indoors as a side table in a living room, a perch in a dressing room, or a stool in a bath. The cut-out handles make it easy to move where you need it. Can a ceramic stool stay outside in winter?Glazed stoneware handles sun and rain well, but water that freezes in or on ceramic can crack it. In climates with freezing winters, bring the stool indoors or store it dry in a garage or shed for the cold months. In mild climates it can stay out all year. Care Wipe clean with mild soap and water and dry Avoid abrasive pads, harsh chemicals and pressure washers Lift by the handles rather than dragging it across stone or pavers
